

Moving on (after diagnosis) – What next?

Post Diagnosis Workshop 5

Objective of the Workshop

- Providing you with a 'tool kit' to enable you to move forward
- Telling people about your diagnosis
 - Positives and negatives
 - Things to consider
- Support available for you
- Support for partners and families

Telling People about your Diagnosis

Telling people you have autism can be a daunting task

 Consider who you want to tell. You can choose who you disclose your diagnosis to, or you may choose not to tell certain people about your diagnosis

 It may be helpful to make a list of the advantages and disadvantages

Positives of telling others

- People who know about your diagnosis may be more understanding or empathetic to difficulties you face.
- People may understand you better once they know you have autism
- You don't have to try to hide your autism
- You may be part of encouraging others to learn more about autism – is this important to you?

Negatives of telling others

- You may worry you will be met with lack of understanding or prejudice from others
- It may be difficult to fit in with others
- People may ask inappropriate or insensitive questions
- Difficult to find the right time, place, opportunity, may keep 'putting it off'

Time to Pause.....

AUTISM AT
KINGWOOD

- •Any questions?
- •Any comments?
- Time to share.

• If you choose to tell someone about your KINGWOO diagnosis you may wish to consider who you tell and how you will tell them.

 It can be helpful to explain what autism spectrum condition is and how it affects you individually.
 Give the person an opportunity to ask questions to help them understand the condition.

https://www.autism.org.uk/about/what-is/asd.aspx

- Consider where and when you will tell the KINGWOO person. A quiet private space, at a time that you are both free and have time to discuss in full is best.
- Make it clear whether this is confidential information and who you are happy to know you have autism. If you do not want the person to tell anyone else, you need to explain this to them and why – this is OK.

- If you are not sure about whether to tell someone unfamiliar you have autism, you could ask for advice from a family member or

- If it doesn't go well, or the person has a negative reaction, try not to take it personally.
 They may not know about the condition or may have misconceptions about autism.

friend who already knows you have autism.

• Focus on what you like about yourself, and KINGWOO positive reactions you have had. Just because one person had a negative reaction it does not mean that everyone will.

Time to Pause.....

AUTISM AT
KINGWOOD

- •Any questions?
- •Any comments?
- Time to share.

Support Available to You

- Structured learning and Mentoring
 - Aspiration, OAADSS website www.oaadss.org.uk/
- Benefits Advice
 - BBMH, Citizen's Advice, and Oxfordshire Welfare Rights
- Social Groups
 - Aspiration Café/Cinema groups, Oxford Aspies, Banbury Aspies
- Housing Support
 - Connection Support, Oxfordshire Mind Housing
- Adult Social Care
 - Care Act Needs Assessment

Refer to handout for more information

Care Act Needs Assessment

- If you have support needs that require on-going weekly support, you may be entitled to a personal budget to pay for support.
- You will need to undergo a Social Care Act needs assessment with the local authority. A social worker will talk to you about your support needs and assess your eligibility for a personal budget.
- This can be arranged by contacting Oxfordshire's Social and Health Care Team on 0345 050 7666.
- For more information about the Care Act eligibility and to request an assessment visit
 - https://www.oxfordshire.gov.uk/residents/getting-needs-assessment/members-public

Moving forward with life with autism

 Accepting the way your brain processes and responds to information is different

- Accepting your difference and stopping trying to be someone you aren't (masking-which is exhausting)
- Avoiding situations you don't need to go to/do if it is difficult and not really necessary
- Finding coping strategies for situations/events you can't avoid

Moving forward with life with autism

Prioritising de-stressing time for yourself

BEING KIND TO YOURSELF

 Making reasonable adjustments where helpful (or asking for them)

 Recognising and using your strengths as much as possible (builds confidence and self-esteem)

Time to Pause.....

AUTISM AT
KINGWOOD

- •Any questions?
- •Any comments?
- Time to share.

Acceptance by others

- Supporting your partner to acknowledge that your condition is lifelong can often be difficult at times.
- However, coping strategies can help which makes daily life less stressful for both you and your partner. For example, routines and agreed timetables can help, as can looking at how you communicate.

Behaviour and Relationships Strategies

- Your partner may have difficulties understanding you sometimes.
- It can help to talk to your partner about any relationship problems you are having and explain your feelings in a calm, reasoned way using clear language.

Oxfordshire Relate Centre OX4 1EH 01865 242 960 https://www.relate.org.uk/

Talking to someone who understands

- Autism is a complex condition, and it is important that support is informed and understanding of these complexities.
- There are family groups in the area, and these can be very supportive. The benefit in talking to someone who understands should not be underestimated.
- Autism Family Support http://www.afso.org.uk/
 01844 338696

Many autistic adults have partners and families. Some people manage relationships and family life without difficulties while others may need support at times.

A support group for parents

- www.parents-talking-aspergers.co.uk
- A friendly charity run by parents for parents/carers who are raising children/young adults on the spectrum
 - http://oasisonline.org.uk/
- Information, advice and support for adults caring for adults in Oxfordshire
 - www.carersoxfordshire.org.uk
- Different Together is a safe and supportive community for the partners of people with autism
 - https://different-together.co.uk/

Time to Pause.....

AUTISM AT
KINGWOOD

- •Any questions?
- •Any comments?
- Time to share.

Employment Advice

- AUTISM AT
 KINGWOOD
- The work environment can be a difficult place at times, especially if you have autism.
 There are lots of unwritten rules and office politics that may not be clear.
- The National Autistic Society has advice on how to cope with interaction at work: https://www.autism.org.uk/about/adult-life/work.aspx
- This will be the subject or our next Workshop

Acknowledgements and further information

AUTISM AT
KINGWOOD

We appreciate the valued input from Mark Feilden, working as an 'expert by experience' as part of Oxfordshire Adult Autism Diagnostic and Support Service team in producing this workshop.

https://www.autism.org.uk/

http://www.oxfordshirewelfarerights.btck.co.uk/

https://www.oxfordshiremind.org.uk/what-we-do/benefits-advice https://www.oxfordshire.gov.uk/residents/social-and-health-care/adult-social-care/working-and-learning/oxfordshire-employment/

Autism A very short Introduction Uta Frith OUP

The facts: Autism and Asperger Syndrome Simon Baron-Cohen OUP

Developing Talents: Careers for Individuals and Asperger Syndrome and High functioning Autism Temple Grandin and Kate Duffy APC

Survival strategies for People on the Autism Strategy Marc Fleisher Jessica

Kingsley

Asperger Syndrome and Employment Sarah Hendrickx Jessica Kingsley Love, Sex and Long-term Relationships Sarah Hendrickx Jessica Kingsley